WHICH SICK WIFE MADE WHILE HE WAS TAKING A NAP.

The Nurse Tells About the Signing of the Will, but Previously Had Made Affidavit That Mrs. Canton Was Very Weak and Delirious-Left All to Niece and Nephew. Surrogate Fitzgerald heard testimony resterday in the contest over the will of Mrs. Susan Canton, who died on February 6 last at her home, 206 East Sixteenth street. She left an estate of about $50,000. In the will, which was executed on the morning of the day she died, Mrs. Canton cut off her husband, Col. Thomas M. Canton, without a cent and left all her property to be divided equally between Emily Randall, an actress and niece of Mrs. Canton, and John Hempenstall, a nephew, who was also named as executor.

The will was executed at 7 o'clock in the morning while Col. Canton was asleep in a room on the floor above that of the sick room. He had wearied after many hours watching at the bedside. Col. Canton is well known in Irish and military circles here. He is a lawyer. He is 79 years old, and his wife was that age when she died. He served through the civil war in the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

May Rosely Traub, a trained nurse, and one of the subscribing witnesses to the will, was called to testify in behalf of the proponents, Miss Randall and John Hempenstall. Miss Traub testified that she was called in to nurse Mrs. Canton by Dr. Peter H. Ernst on the day before Mrs. Canton died. She said she found the elderly woman dying of pneumonia. Miss Randall and Mr. Hempenstall were with the sick woman and announced that their aunt desired to make her will. Hempenstall, the nurse said, called in a man named Jackson, took the will from an envelope and handed it to Miss Randall.

"Then," testified Miss Traub, "Miss Randall said to the sick woman: 'Auntie, this is your will. Do you wish to give all your property to John and me?' Mrs. Canton said: Yes, one half to you and one half to "The will was then explained to Mrs. Canton and she was asked to sign it. I went over to her and asked her, after she went over to her and asked her, after she had been fixed in a sitting position, if she could sign the will, and she said she thought so. I fixed her up with pillows and steadied her by putting my hand to her back. The will was then handed to her and she signed it. Jackson and I then signed the will."

The witness said further that as far as she could judge Mrs. Canton was of sound mind when she signed the will.

Lawyer Frank A. Patterson, who appeared for Col. Canton, who contested the will on the ground that it was executed at a time when his wife was of unsound mind and was under the undue influence of her niece and nephew, confronted Miss Traub with an affidavit she had made previous to the trial of the case. In this affidavit the nurse declared that Mrs. Canton was so ill and weak that she could not hold a spoon in her hands; that she was delirious, and in her hands; that she was delirious, and continued so at times until she died, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the following day. She declared further in the affidavit that the wil was brought into the sick-room already written at 2 o'clock in the morning an 1 that either Miss Randall or Mr. Hempenstall brought the will into the affidavit, "that she was a very sick woman; that it would not be well to disturb her, and that any business necessary for transaction must be done in a very short time. They informed me that they wanted Mrs. Canton to make a will leaving her property to them. Mrs. Canton was in a very low condition. I leaned over her and told her I had a paper in my hands which left her property to her nephew and niece, and asked her whether she was satisfied. he murmured something. I took her and raised her up into a sitting position, as she was not able to sit up alone.

Miss Traub's affidavit stated that the subscribing witnesses signed the docu-ment in the room adjoining the sickroom so that Mrs. Canton would not be dis-turbed. Mrs. Canton did not request them sign it, as she was unable to speak at Lawyer Patterson endeavored to obtain from the witness an explanation of her change of story. The only explanation he would give was that she was very ill at the time she made the affidavit.

Jackson corroborated the testimony of

ENTER FIRE HOUSE BY FORCE. Richmond Hill Volunteers Had Tried to Keep Paid Firemen Out.

When the new detail of paid firemen went to Richmond Hill, L. I., yesterday to take ssion of their new quarters they met with unexpected opposition and had to force an entrance into the house occupied by the Columbia Fire Department.

The house, a brick building, is owned by the two volunteer companies forming the Columbia department, the members of which now have to give way to the paid firemen. The city has been trying to rent the building, but it is said by the volunteers that the lease and the amount of rent have not yet been arranged for and that until they are the regular firemen are not entitled to use the building

The volunteers had been ordered to turn over their apparatus to the regular firemen yesterday morning, and when Battalion Chief Stone, who is to command there, arrived he found that the engine and hose truck had found that the engine and hose truck had been run out in the street and were sta ding in front of the house, but when he came to enter the house he found the door pad-locked and none of the volunteers could be induced to produce the key.

It looked for a time as if there was going to be a scrap between the paid men and the volunteers, as both sides were worked up to a fighting pitch, but some one notified the Richmond Hill police that trouble was threatened and four policemen were rushed to the fire house to preserve order.

Battalion Chief Stone finally telephoned for Chief Croker, who made a wonderfully fast run in his auto from Ma hattan to Richmond Hill and ordered that the house antered by force. Then the resultant be entered by force. Then the regulars ost no time in smashing the radlock, only increased the business in the Yorkville police court yesterday nearly 50 per cent. There were sixty-two prisoners charged with discharging revolvers in the streets and with carrying revolvers.

The latter in all cases were held for trial in Special Sessions. One of these was Julius Hicks of 117 East Twenty-eighth street, who is employed as a driver by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He happened to be in a crowd where pistols were being discharged and was arrested when it was found that he was carrying a gun. Magistrate Wahle began imposing $10 fines on the men who were accuse i of shooting in the streets. He called attention to the death of two women by accidental shots. Chief Clerk Richter was kept busy taking in money for the city and making change for the contributors.

After a score or so of the prisoners had been fined the usual $10 the others seemed to know what was coming to them. Victor Pattini, an Italian who lives at 341 East Twelfth street, didn't understand the situation. He had been caught discharging a revolver and seemed to think he was in danger of going to prison.

He wanted a lawyer, and one offered his services and assured him that he would obtain his discharge for a $15 fee. The Italian handed over the money, and when his case was called the lawyer said to the

as he handed back $10.

One young man was arrested for firing a small cannon in the street. The Magistrate let him off on a $2 fine.

Policeman Patrick Fitzgibbons of the East Fifty-first street station, who is a new member of the force, established a record for a hard working bluecoat. He had twenty prisoners in court. Two of them were taken in for shooting in the streets. were taken in for shooting in the streets, nine youths played ball in the street, four men annoyed pedestrians on First avenue by fighting over a can w beer. The others were arrested for disorderly conduct and intoxication.

All of the firearms captured were ordered to be turned over to the property clerk at Police Headquarters and will help to make up the annual police sale.

WON'T ENJOIN THE POLICE. Long Acre Turned Down Again by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court has denied once more an application of the Long Acre Athletic Association for an injunction restraining Police Commissioner Bingham and the force in general from interfering with the boxing exhibitions held in the club headquarters on West Twenty-ninth street. Justice McCall writes the decision this time.

Justice McCall points out that the power of the Court should be employed in the most guarded manner. Justice McCall

"When it is sought to direct it against the officers and executive head of the Police Department in the exercise of what they deem proper police duty, the appellate courts have spoken in no uncertain tone courts have spoken in no uncertain tone and adversely to the proposition of granting injunctive relief. If it be true that a series of wanton and unjustifiable offences have been committed by the officers, the plaintiff is not without adequate remedy at law, and even the criminal courts may be resorted to that proper punishment may be meted out."

BACKED A FAKE; ENDED LIFE. Man Who Took Up Cobbler's Scheme for Burning Ashes Kills Himself.

ALTOONA, Pa., July 5 .- Dr. H. K. Hoy, one of the wealthiest physicians of Altoona, committed suicide this morning by swallowing the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid. He was dead when he was found.

About six months ago Dr. Hoy became the financial backer of John Ellmore, an Altoons cobbler, who claimed to have dis-covered a process by which ashes could be burned.

The scheme was widely advertised until scientists branded it as a fake. Dr. Hoy was unmercifully twitted by his friends, and soon letters ridiculing him began to pour in from all parts of the country. He could not stand the ridicule, and after a number of sleepless nights took his life. He was worth a quarter of a million dollars and high standing as a physician. and had high standing as a physician.

DESERTS HEARST LEAGUE.

Former Republican Mayor of Auburn Says He Has Got All He Wants of It.

AUBURN, July 5 .- Because he believes a political party should represent more than the self-interest of one man, John S. Brown, former Mayor of Auburn, has deserted the Independence League and returned to the Republican party. Mr. Brown was one of the most active and influential supporters of William R. Hearst to find that the door was bolted on the inside. A scaling ladder was then put up to the second story and a fireman went in at a window and allowed his comrades to enter by the door.

The vol nteer firemen say that they will bring an action in the courts against the city for having taken forcible possession of their property.

In order for a political party to be permanently successful its leaders must be honest, sincere and loyal. Disloyal, self-seeking political adventurers are not the proper persons to be intrusted with the control of government."

ANDREWS-ROOSEYELT ROW UP

The enthusiasm of the glorious Fourth | LITIGATION THIS TIME OVER MRS. ANDREWS'S SUPPORT.

> Mr. Andrews and Mr. Roosevelt Are the Committee on Mrs. Andrews's Estate -Mr. Roosevelt Slow in Signing Checks -Says He Waits for Proper Vouchers.

> The troubles between Constant A. Andrews, president of the United States Savings Bank, and the family of John E. Roosevelt were threshed out a liftle more in the Supreme Court yesterday. The trouble this time arises because John E. Roosevelt hasn't been willing to pay out as much money for the support of Mrs. Adnrews, who has been declared an incompetent and who is confined in a private sanitarium, as Mr. Andrews thinks he should.

Mrs. Andrews is a sister of Mrs. Roosevelt, and at the time of her committment her husband was appointed a committee of her person, and then, with John E. Roosevelt, a committee of her estate. When matters involving the expenditure of funds belonging to Mrs. Andrews come up it is necessary for the vouchers to be signed by both Mr. Andrews and Mr. Roosevelt.

Because Mr. Roosevelt has been withholding funds, according to Andrews, the latter's lawyer, John F. Cloonan of the firm of Parker, Hatch & Sheehan, applied yesterday for an order compelling Mr. Roosevelt to pay certain bills contracted for the support of Mrs. Andrews at the private sanitarium and also for the expenditures incurred in the maintenance of her home at 737 Madison avenue. Mrs. Andrews's estate is estimated at about $500,000.

The troubles of Andrews and the Roosevelt families have been aired in the courts several times. One of the cases was that of a divorce suit brought by Frank Klemme against his wife. Hannah Meta Klemme. charging her with having improper relations with Mr. Andrews. Mrs. Klemme was Andrews's housekeeper.

In closing his argument yesterday Lawyer Cloonan for Mr. Andrews said:

"Why weren't these bills paid? Why was this divorce suit brought? Why all this trouble at this late day? The motive in the matter and the reason why these scandalous and false charges of immorality were brought against Mr. Andrews is that an attempt is to be made to bring about a break in the domestic relations between Mr. Andrews and his wife, to have him removed as the committee of her person and have a new committee appointed and then bring a suit for divorce in her name. "The motive for all this is that Mrs. Rooseof Mrs. Andrews, and if Mrs. Andrews dies without leaving a valid will, and she is an incompetent, who would inherit her property? Why, her next of kin, of course? This is the motive, your Honor, for this whole thing.

In replying to Mr. Cloonan John F. Devlin, counsel for John E. Roosevelt, declared that the latter stood rearly and was anxious to pay any bills for expenditures for Mrs. Andrews or in payment for the expenses of the household. Mr. Devlin declared that all Mr. Roosevelt wanted was declared that all Mr. Roosevelt wanted was proper vouchers, so as to satisfy the Court that it was a proper expenditure when the time comes for an accounting. He declared that Mr. Roosevelt had not been allowed to see Mrs. Andrews's quarters in the sanitarium and had also failed to get admission to the Madison avenue house.

Mr. Devlin told the Court that on June 12 of this year Mr. Roosevelt drew checks for over $3,000 and sent them to Mr. Andrews to be signed, it being necessary to have the signatures of the two trustees on the checks. Mr. Devlin said that Mr. Roosevelt had never received these checks back.

"Mr. Roosevelt is now going over the mass of vouchers," said counsel for Roosevelt, "and will draw checks for the amounts just as soon as he is convinced that the ex-

Justice Dayton referred the matter to Charles Buckley Hubbell as referee to take testimony and report forthwith to the Court.

ODD SUICIDE IN A HOTEL. Woman Had Pienty of Money and Was Generous to Servants - Not Yet Identified.

A woman who said before she died that she was May Green committed suicide yesterday in the Harlem Central Hotel, which is just opposite the 125th street station of the New York Central. According to the explanation given by the proprietor the woman arrived there on June 29 with a number of trunks and took room 28 on the third floor. The entry on the register shows the name of Mrs. G. Green.

Shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning violent ring came from the bell in room and when a maid answered the call she found the woman lying on the bed with blood flowing from both wrists. A ambulance was sent for and she was taken to the Harlem Hospital. The hospital authorities finally told her she was dying and asked her to tell who she was, as a close search of her effects had failed to bring to light anything that would serve to identify her.

"I'm going to die," she repeated when the doctors told her that her condition was serious. "Well, I can't help that, I suppose, but I will not tell you who I am."

The woman was pressed for a reply and finally said that she was May Green. Shortly after she lost consciousness and died. An autopsy was ordered by the Coroner, as it was thought that the woman had also taken poison, as the amount of blood she lost was not sufficient of itself to have caused death. "I'm going to die," she repeated when

From what the police were and got off seems that the woman had got off seems that the woman had gone to the From what the police were able to learn it seems that the woman had got off some train at 125th street and gone to the hotel. Her presence there caused some comment even among the employees, as it was seen at once that she was different from the usual run of guests. The woman was not over thirty years of age. Her clothes were of the best and she had plenty of money. She was always cheerful and made herself popular with the servants by her generosity. The most noticeable thing about her actions was her eagerness to receive some letter, which never came so far as is known. A description was sent out by the police.

At the time of her death she wore a white silk waist, a new straw hat with blue flowers on it, a dark silk skirt and patent leather
